

Antiracism and Decolonization

This meme discusses the work of Holmes & Hunt (2015) who argue in their work that genuine anti-racist and decolonial action must include an understanding that one has privileges (white privilege, economic privilege, etc) that they must take accountability for. They also argue that commitment to work towards the dismantling of white supremacist and colonial systems is vital (work cannot be anti-racist if one is not interested in putting an end to systems of oppression). Finally, they argue that this work must be done without the expectation of acknowledgement from less privileged folks.